How to Get Rid of a Flea and Ticks Posted on Feb 15, 2013 Before you resort to over-the-counter and prescription medications, here are some natural remedies you can try to get rid of fleas, ticks and other pests. Flea and Tick Deterrence Fleas and ticks tend to hang out on moist, dark surfaces, and you can help deter them by keeping the areas around your house and yard clean. Soil mites may be repelled by washing exposed areas with plain, warm water. Apply a 10 percent to 20 percent solution of baking soda, or wash with a 10 percent solution of chlorine, to the floors and furniture of your home. Spray the inside of closets and drawers with a 20 percent solution of baking soda. Wash bedding with a 10 percent chlorine solution. Flea and Tick Treatments Use a spray called Frontline applied at least every three weeks to kill and repel fleas and ticks. Alternately, you can treat your cat with a topical flea treatment that provides protection for one month. Conventional flea repellents like DEET, cedar oil and picaridin are also effective. If you have a cat that suffers from fleas or ticks and you are unable to find a prescription or topical flea treatment, then check the health products section of a pet store and look for "homeopathic" or "natural" treatments. Feverfew is an herb that has been used for centuries to treat migraine headaches and fever. Research shows that feverfew has antiseptic properties that kill and repel fleas. Even better, it seems to also help to reduce flea attraction. As a last
